COOK ISLANDS INVASION

Whilst the Japanese never got to the Cook Islands, Pam and Ginetta have landed at Rarotonga the capital of the Cook Islands and as far as we know are reeking havoc in these pleasant islands.

For those that are not aware of the position of the Cook Islands we print this small location map.

Joe and Valerie Merchant are in the meantime sunning themselves in sunny Marrakesh, Morocco, whilst we that are left behind are wondering where our future lies as we throw money across the bar toward the lovely barmaids.

Bottom of column one - Marrakesh is where Joe and Valerie are enjoying a sumptuous two weeks. It is nice to know that Pilots Pals Members travel vast distances DANCING DES NATIONS Comes to Pilots Pals Bar. This is similar to 'Morris Dancing' where contestants of all sexes can compete following the consumption of much alcohol, whereupon the vision of the different sexes becomes blurred, and loud music distorts the hearing and the power of thinking and choice of partners is totally at random Morris Dancers carry big sticks which they whack together and it looks very dangerous.

M&S NEW DRIVE IN SERVICE Unconfirmed reports are coming in about this latest drive in food service at M&S at Biggin Hill. Unfortunately the service was not in operation when the first customer drove into the store recently, spilling oil, and requiring the services of the fire brigade to exit the vehicle to go shopping. The lady driver who was unharmed said afterwards "I thought the entrance was rather small" as I approached. 'It was only then, that I became concerned - and panicked' !!!

GOLD AIR BIGGIN HILL

This well known aviation company has been sold to Air Partner plc according to an article in the Sunday Telegraph – Good luck to David and Ralph Gold who have been around this airfield for many, many years.

Is this the way to the leaving party with cocktails and canopies? OVERHEARD AT THE BAR Cheers everybody! Followed by a stunned silence, because there was no one around the bar to respond to this remark. REAL PANICK ! KIN HELL Dave Crew of 'Nose wheel fame' takes a real nose dive as he falls 160 feet plus to the ground from a very high roof top. It felt like 300 feet on the way down he said afterwards. I tried to round out, but found the change of direction to the horizontal required serious control inputs beyond my comprehension for the increasing rate of descent I was experiencing at this critical moment in my life.

David's Physiologist seen here at an earlier bar-side consultation, phoned from the Cook Islands (where she is holidaying) to say that, it would have been far safer to have jumped, than fall hopelessly out of control.

THE LIQUID SPONGE

Ben Holmes, referred to as the 'liquid sponge' in the October issue has pointed out that a sponge absorbs liquid, so therefore the Bugle's literary department is somewhat dyslexic, with reference to this article. Ben spent 4 years at University studying English and is a bit of a whiz kid in this department and felt he had to point out our inaccuracy. We at the Bugle didn't make this remark, so defend our report as correct and true. The remark was made by a senior executive of 'Pilots Pals Bar' over a pint. Case closed !!

LANDING PROCEDURES

Remember not to lower the wheels too early, otherwise you may end up in this situation just a tad short of the runway !!

EXPERIMENTAL FLYING

Can be somewhat hazardous and discouraging during the learning phases of experimenting with unknown elements of aerodynamics

FORMULA 1 SEASON ENDS

With a nail biting finish. Michael Schumacher fell back to 20th place following a puncture and worked his way up to 4th place for the finish

Debbie and Steve Danahar arrived at the Pilots Pals bar from their Mediterranean Tour resplendent in the colours of the Renault Team supporting Fernando Alonso the youngest ever F1 World Champion as Michael Schumacher retires. We at the Bugle and others think Michael will sponsor his own team in the next year. He hasn't finished.

THE BUGLE INVESTIGATES

The strange antics of Fernando after his GP wins. Is a culture relating to 'Nodoyuna' (Dick Dastardly)

He really looks like the Dastardly Crew with the hunched shoulders and drooping arms. It took us a while to work it out, Hee,hee,hee. He is now the World Champion, following a tense year of F1.

PILOT CHAPPIE REPORTS

Dave Crew has been discharged from hospital following his 300ft rooftop fall and is unable to use crutches supplied because his injuries (arm and leg) are all on the left side, and he falls over as a result. The barmaid says what about a wheel chair? Pilot Chappie says he would only go around in circles, wouldn't he !! Oh yeaahh, was the response!!

BONEY 'M' RENDITION

Following all this we had to put up with Derek Clauson's version of 'Brown Girl In The Ring' which was a Boney 'M' classic played on his mouth organ accompanied by his hand held castinette. - Brilliant !

OVERHEAD AT THE BAR

The editor mentioned casually that he had been out to lunch with the wife whilst shopping at IKEA to which Pilot Chappie said, 'did you have to put it together yourself' very funny ! By the same token this Pilot Chappie said his wife wanted to scatter his ashes at sea when he dies - he asks why? She says, 'Oh! I fancy a sea cruise'. That way I can kill two birds with one stone. We at the Bugle are somewhat concerned as to the remaining bird, who will provide the conclusive - sea cruise. !!!
